Report: Experiential Learning activity for Class 4

"For the things we have to learn before we can do them, we learn by doing them."-Aristotle

An Experiential Activity for Class 4 was conducted on the 31st of January 2023. The activity began with an air of cheer and enthusiasm as the children prepared themselves for a time of learning and fun.

Curiosity to learn and do something new

The activity executed was Finger painting on Pouches. The children expressed their emotions and experienced their senses through dabbling and experimenting with colour. The outcome for them was aesthetically pleasing and visually appealing.

Valuable skills were discovered when they mixed different colours together and explored textures by painting on different surfaces like the jute pouch.

Exploring textures by painting

The volunteer interacted with the children and built a good rapport with them in a short span of time. The children were gently helped and guided.

Excitement to be immersed in the world of colours

It was an absolute pleasure to see the children immersed in the world of colours, learning something new, interacting, communicating, expressing, appreciating, and generally enjoying themselves.

Creativity fashions its own perfect moments
